Extra Day to File State Tax Returns
And Pay

New Mexico Follows New IRS Deadline of April 17

SANTA FE--New Mexico taxpayers will get an extra two days to file and pay their 2006 state income taxes, announced the Department of Taxation and Revenue (TRD). The Internal Revenue Service announced the new April 17, 2007, deadline, and TRD quickly changed the New Mexico deadline to mirror the federal action. "Changing the state tax filing deadline with the IRS deadline is a common sense action," said Jan Goodwin, Secretary of Taxation and Revenue. "We welcome the good news that New Mexico taxpayers filing taxes will now have until April 17 to do so."

The April 17 deadline applies to 2006 federal income tax returns, whether filed electronically or on paper. TRD encourage taxpayers to get an early start on their taxes to make sure they have plenty of time to accurately prepare their return. Electronic filing for state income taxes is fast, free and secure. It is available at <https://efile.state.nm.us>. Taxpayers who use E-Filing have until April 30th to file and pay state income taxes. Contact the Department of Taxation and Revenue for further assistance.
